MEMORIAL DAY.

Veteran Organizations Unite in Honoring the Dead.

Eloquent Address of C. W. Hidden At the Soldier's Monument.

Brilliant Afternoon Pageant and Interesting Evening Exercises.

Memorial day was one of the most beautiful and lovely in the history of the observance of this sacred holiday, and although the morning opened somewhat unpropitious, the brisk wind which came out of the southwest foretold of the rolling back of the leaden clouds and of the sunlight to follow. The comrades of the various veteran organizations were early astir and detachments were sent to outlying cemeteries laden with the choicest flowers of springtime to garland the latest bivouac of the immortal dead. By nine o'clock the men engaged in this duty had returned and our streets were soon lively with the men of 61-5, clad in U. V. U., G. A. R. and Naval veterans' uniforms vying their way to their respective headquarters in preparation for the morning parade.

Memorial day of '99 had a peculiar significance and interest for the local veterans in that it was the first time in seven years that the boys who stood shoulder to shoulder, amid the smoke of battle, were to unite in the sacred duties of honoring their departed comrades. It was the beginning of a new era and a closer union of the comradeship welded in the fire of battle.

Morning.

The morning parade and exercises were under the auspices of General Gilman Marston Command, No. 6, Union Veterans Union, the line moving promptly at ten o'clock in the following order:

Assistant Marshal Frank H. West.
Platoon of Police.
Drum Major Leslie Norman.
Dover Cornet Band, twenty men, Redfield Leader.

General Gilman Marston Command, No. 6, Department of New Hampshire, Union Veterans Union. Colonel John P. Tibbets, Commanding. Jos. R. Curtis, Adjutant. Storer Post, No. 1, G. A. R., J. W. Watkins, Commander, A. Schrieter, Adjutant.

Selection by the Band.
Remarks by Colonel John P. Tibbets, commanding.

Selection by the Band.
Address by Dr. Charles W. Hidden of Newburyport, Mass., Orator of the Day.

Singing, "America."
Benediction by Chaplain.

Dr. Hidden's address was one of the finest orations ever delivered in this city and was listened to with rapt attention throughout and loudly applauded at its close.

We regret that we are unable to publish the eloquent address, as no description of the masterly oration can do it justice, taking into consideration the gentleman's splendid elocutionary powers and fine presence.

At the close of the exercises the line reformed and moved through Goodwin park to State street, down State to Pleasant, up Pleasant to Congress and through Congress to the U. V. U. head quarters, where the invited guests, including Storer Post and the Kearsarge Naval veterans, were banqueted by General Gilman Marston Command and Harriet P. Dame Relief Union. The occasion was one of much enjoyment to the old veterans and at its close the visiting organizations repeatedly cheered their hosts.

Afternoon.

The bright warm sun and the brisk west wind had dried up the mud of the morning and the streets were thronged with people to witness the programme of Memorial day exercises as arranged by Storer Post, No. 1, Department of New Hampshire, G. A. R.

The column countermarched on Congress street, and moved through Congress to Middle, to Richards avenue, to the South cemetery, where the column closed en masse near the head of the pond and the following interesting exercises were rendered in the presence of a multitude of people:

Prayer by the Post Chaplain.

Reading of General Orders by Post Adjutant.

Selection by the Band.
Decoration of Soldiers' Graves.
Recall.

The line was then reformed and returned through Main avenue to South street, through Pleasant, State, Middle and Congress to Market square, where the parade was dismissed.

The evening exercises in Music hall were exceedingly interesting to the large audience, which was attracted by the following programme:

The veterans of Storer Post, Kearsarge Naval veterans and General Gilman Marston Command occupied several rows of seats near the stage.

The singing of the school children was exceedingly fine and was repeatedly encouraged.

The readings by Miss Warner were greatly enjoyed and the talented lady was obliged to respond to encores several times.

Hon. Stanton Owen, the orator of the evening, gave a splendid address, a fluent, graceful speaker, and held the attention of the audience closely from the opening to the peroration.

Notes.

The weather turned out to be just what the old veterans ordered.

Portsmouth paid due honor to her dead heroes and the observance of the day was general.

The platoon of police, with Assistant Marshal West at the head, presented an imposing appearance.

The local band did finely and the crowd gave them hearty applause. The boys are entitled to much praise.

One of the most pleasing things connected with the observance of the day was to see the various veteran organizations marching together.

The dress parade, which for years had been a feature of the day's exercises, had to be dispensed with owing to the lack of officers for the marine battalion.

AT THE NAVY YARD.

Admiral Remy passed Memorial day out of town.

A forty-foot steam cutter was shipped on Monday to Washington.

The news of the death of Captain Seawards was learned with much regret.

The old Yantic is now at Detroit, Michigan, as a naval militia training ship.

Many of the officers of the Raleigh were entertained in Portsmouth during Tuesday.

With the orders received by Inspector Foster, came the revocation of the appointments of his clerks.

STORY OF A SLAVE

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Balm, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work."

This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle-working medicine is a godsend to the weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Globe Grocery Co., Druggist.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY'S ORDER!
President McKinley's civil service order which was issued on Monday has but little in it for New Hampshire office seekers.

It affects the Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue but Collector Wood has a force of all republican appointees with the exception of one.

The only changes made at the navy yard is the taking of special mechanics out of the Civil Service.

The Deputy Naval officer at Boston is also removed from the list.

DOMESTICS QUARREL.

Two colored domestics employed in a family in this city quarrelled on Tuesday in the kitchen of their employer, and came to blows. The air was full of hair and kitchen utensils for a few minutes and the battle a warm one. Marshal Entwistle has been arbitrating today between the warring factions.

NEWSY GLEANINGS FROM OUR SUBURBAN TOWNS.

YORK.

YORK, May 29.

The entertainment at the Town hall on Friday evening was a pronounced success. The overture by Music hall orchestra was followed by a reading from Shakespeare by Mr. James Taylor who fully sustained his well established reputation and responded to an encore by "Killing the Parson" in a most touching manner. The light comedy, "The Obstinate Family" was acted in an able manner, the ladies and gents taking their roles to life. The hit of the evening was made by Editor Twombly who gave an original humorous song in his inimitable manner, and after deafening applause responded with a repetition of the cannon stanza, which we are shortly to see in print. ## CAN'T SPARE VOLUNTEERS

Gen. Otis Issues Orders Inviting Them to Re-enlist for Six Months.

NEEDS THEIR SERVICES.

General MacArthur Favors Experiment of Enlisting the Macabebes Against the Enemy.

Those Who Have Assisted Our Troops Ready to Go On and Render Further Aid—Gravity of Situation in Philippines Looked Upon With Much Seriousness—Call for More Volunteers May Be Issued.

Manila, May 29.—Major-General Otis has issued orders inviting volunteers to re-enlist for six months, according to the act of Congress bearing on the subject.

Gen. MacArthur is in favor of the experiment of enlisting the Macabebes against their old enemies, the Tagals.

A delegation of leading Macabebes has visited the General and its spokesman read an address assuring the American commander of the friendship of the Macabebes and of their willingness to transfer their allegiance from Spain to the United States. They complained that the Tagals murdered them and burned their villages, and they asked to be protected and given arms to protect themselves.

The Macabebes have greatly assisted in informing the Americans about the country and the enemy's positions.

Gen. MacArthur would arm a hundred of these men and use them as scouts, and if the experiment proved successful he would enlist more of them.

The Spanish steamer Leon XIII. landed the Twenty-third Regiment of United States regulars on the island of Jolo and took on board the Spanish garrison, the Americans paying the Spaniards the usual honors.

Gen. J. D. Milley, of Gen. Lawton's staff, has been appointed Collector of the Port of Manila.

Manila, May 29.—The transport Morgan City, which has arrived here from San Francisco, has been ordered to 11 o'clock.

The natives are returning to the outskirts of San Fernando, where they are making persistent attempts to worry the American garrison. Skirmishes are frequent.

The Filipinos are spreading a story which is being widely credited among the natives that the grand celebration which took place on Queen Victoria's birthday, including the illumination of the British cruiser Powerful was arranged by Gen. Otis in honor of the Filipino Commissioners, who are gaining prestige with the Americans.

The American troops are being established about preparatory to the reorganization of Gen. Lawton's division south of Manila.

San Fernando is on the northwestern coast of the island of Luzon.

Washington, May 29.—The gravity of the situation in the Philippines is no longer concealed; the feeling of confidence has given way to apprehension. The fact that a strict military censorship exists at Manila indicates that Gen. Otis desires to have it generally known that he wants reinforcements.

The withdrawal of the volunteers would weaken his command by about 15,000 men, while he will receive in regular troops less than 9,000. His fighting force will be less than 30,000 men.

Mr. Barrett, ex-Minister to Siam, who has just returned here by way of the Philippines, says it will require at least 50,000 men to pacify the islands. Gen. Lawton's estimate is 100,000.

If a call for volunteers is made it must be made very soon. Army officers believe it will be difficult to get men to enlist in organizations of volunteers. Their experience during the war with Spain did not inspire confidence.

Owing to the urgent representations of Gen. Otis, the War Department has ordered the Sheridan to sail June 7 with 2,000 recruits now at San Francisco. These men will be used to fill the regular regiments now in the field. It was the original intention to have the Sheridan take the Nineteenth Infantry on the 15th of June, but the urgency of the occasion was such that the greatest possible dispatch is being exercised in sending reinforcements.

All the territory in Luzon Island captured, except a small section immediately around Manila, will soon be evacuated by the American forces, who will go into camp at Manila.

Philippines Are Greenbackers.

Washington, May 29.—Paper money cannot be used in the Philippines, for there is a variety of ants in the islands which eat almost everything and are particularly fond of paper. In a recent shipment of money for the troops was $1,000,000 in paper money of small denominations, and preparations were being made to send more paper in the next shipment, when a warning was given that hereafter nothing but silver and gold coin must be sent to the islands.

Postoffice Robbers Captured.

Omaha, Neb., May 29.—Deputies Pearsall and Barber, of the United States Marshal's office, aided by detective, have succeeded in capturing George Bomboy and Otto Noffke, alias "Kid Mason," alleged postoffice robbers. Two women with them were also arrested. On the night of April 11 the postoffice at Boulder, Col., was entered and robbed of money and stamps to the amount of $3,500, and it is alleged that the persons named are the guilty parties.

Kansas Miners Strike.

Pittsburg, Kan., May 29.—The miners of the Hamilton and Braidwood and Crow Coal Company have laid down their tools and refuse to go to work until the proposed agreement is signed by the operators. This takes out about 175 more men. The managers of the Schwab and Durkee coal companies have signed the contract and their men have resumed work.

LYNCHING DENOUNCED.

The Last One in Texas Claimed as a Most Brutal Outrage.

Dallas, Texas, May 29.—The development in the triple lynching of the Humphreys, father and two sons, in Henderson county, stamp the crime as one of the most cruel in Texas. The victims of the mob were not killed for suspected of having knowledge of crimes committed and of being undesirable residents in the community where they were executed, without the benefit of a trial or an opportunity to dispose of their belongings and get away. The worst thing ever brought against the men lynched was an indictment against the two brothers charging them with hog stealing, but the offense was not fastened on them. They were out on bond and were awaiting trial. Against James Humphrey, the father, absolutely no charge of crime was pending.

The lynchings have been captured and are now in jail at Athens, and it is feared that they, too, will become the victims of mob violence if the jail is not well guarded, as friends of the Humphreys are making strong threats against them.

Stock Men Made Happy.

Omaha, Neb., May 29.—The feeding-in-transit rates have been abolished on all Western railroads. Probably no event in the history of the West since the completion of the Union Pacific means so much to the Western stock interests as this departure from a policy established a quarter of a century ago. Through a very animated discussion has already developed as to what interest will most lose by the change, there is no difference of opinion as to the material effect the abolition of these rates will have in the way of stimulating the live stock industry generally from Chicago to the Pacific slope.

Only Eleven Came for the Money.

Havana, May 29.—Only 11 Cuban soldiers have applied for their share of the $3,000,000 provided by the United States for the distribution station here. Seven were paid. Three were not on the list and one was not identified. None turned over arms five out of seven having been servants in the army. The other two stated that they had given their arms to Gen. Gomez. Colonel Randall took their word for this, asking no receipt.

Seven Miners Badly Injured.

Pittsburg, May 29.—Seven men were injured in a powder explosion at Mine No. 1 of the Koughenough River Coal Company, at Scott Haven. The men were badly burned, but all will recover except William Baird, Jr., whose injuries are believed to be fatal. The explosion was caused by a match lighting an old stocking filled with blasting powder, which an Italian had carelessly thrown among the powder cans in a mine car in which the men were riding.

Linemen Fatally Injured.

Phoenixville, Pa., May 29.—Nathan Crosby, of Norristown, chief lineman of the new trolley road, was probably fatally injured by falling through the Pennsylvania Railroad Bridge. He was trying to get on the caboose of a freight train and pitched headforemost through the bridge to the ground, a distance of twenty-five feet. He was removed to be hospital in an unconscious condition.

Ten Turned to Death in Their Homes.

Columbia, S. C., May 29.—Jacob Solomon, his wife and eight children, the oldest a girl of eighteen, were burned to death in their home, near Hardeeville, S. C. The house was in a remote place, and it was three days before the news became known here. The family slept on the upper floor, the house caught from below and the timber being dry they were burned in their sleep.

One Killed, Two Injured.

Paterson, N. J., May 29.—One woman was instantly killed and another woman and a man and a child, all of this city, are dying as the result of being struck by a train in Singon. The dead woman is Miss Juliette Rafferty, of No. 572 Main street. The man is her brother, William, and the others are Mrs. Moses Fitzgerald and her infant child. The husband of Mrs. Fitzgerald escaped with a few bruises.

Socialists Meet at Altoona.

Altoona, Pa., May 29.—The State meeting of the Socialist Labor party was held in this city. Fifteen delegates from all parts of the State were present. Samuel Clark, of Philadelphia, was nominated for State Treasurer; Val Renel, of Pittsburg, for Judge of the Supreme Court, and Donald Monroe, of DuBois, was endorsed for Judge of the Superior Court.

Woman Attacked by a Pet Wolf.

Bridgeton, N. J., May 29.—Mrs. Daniel Bozarth, of this place, was attacked by a pet wolf belonging to her husband. The animal was sent to Mr. Bozarth by a Western friend. While his wife was feeding the wolf he attacked her and tried to bite her, tearing the calf of the right leg. Her husband heard her screams and beat the animal off, after which he shot it.

New Court-Martial for Dreyfus.

Paris, May 29.—Captain Dreyfus is certain to have a new court-martial. The French Cable Company is the authority for the statement that Procurator-General Mannau has received communication from Maitre Baillet-Latour, of the report made by Benappe recommending a revision of the Dreyfus trial and a new court-martial for Captain Dreyfus.

Hermit Found Dead in Bed.

West Chester, Pa., May 29.—William Strickler, a hermit who had lived all his life near Leonard Village, in West Marborough Township, was found dead in bed by neighbors who broke into his cabin. Lee's Summit, Mo., May 29.—The arrest here of Ed Kepka by Constable J. M. Short recalls a tragedy that occurred at a country dance at Atlanta, Ill. It is charged that Kepka and two friends went to the dance for the purpose of settling an old feud. The host, Waldren, was fatally wounded. Kepka is wanted for having caused Waldren's death.

WANT TO TELL IT

Many Enthusiastic Portsmouth Citizens Want to Make It Public.

There is something in it. When people want to talk about it. Publicity of a good thing is good for the people. Gratitude promotes publicity. Enthusiastic citizens are talking. Telling neighbors, telling friends. Removing the stumbling block of doubt.

And so the work goes on.

Home endorsement is gaining confidence.

Thousands are learning to appreciate it.

Here is a Gates street citizen who does.

Mrs. Chas. Kennedy, of 26 Gates street, says: "A few years ago I was laid up with rheumatism for over two months so that I could not get out of the house. I never regained my former strength and my kidneys are apt to be quite sluggish. In the winter of 1896 I was taken with a lame back and the constant dull ache made me miserable. I was so sore over my kidneys that I could hardly pick up anything from the floor and twinges caught me in the back that were excruciating. I went to Philbrick's pharmacy on Congress street for Doan's Kidney pills and after I commenced to use them I gradually grew better till the lameness and soreness entirely disappeared. I can conscientiously recommend Doan's Kidney's pills. I consider them a superior kidney remedy."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agent for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

NINE-YEAR-OLD MURDERER.

Colored Lad Blows the Top of a White Boy's Head Off.

Augusta, Ga., May 29.—At the plantation of Col. Frank Towns, on Martintown road, eight miles from here, in Edgefield county, South Carolina, Hamp Davis, a negro, nine years old, shot and instantly killed Arthur Smith, eight years old.

The Smith boy and his little brother were sent past the Davis cabin on a message to their aunt. Davis took some tobacco tags away from Smith, and later told him to come into the cabin and get the tags, and the boy obeyed.

Davis then took his father's gun and discharged it at Smith. The latter fell in the doorway, with the entire upper portion of his head blown away. The young murderer stood laughing until Smith's little brother gave the alarm. A crowd quickly gathered and Davis was taken to Edgefield Jail.

Treasury Officials Pleaded.

Washington, May 29.—Treasury officials are delighted with the financial condition as represented in the receipts and expenditures of the Government. The receipts for the month of May up to the present date have been $40,575,784. This is an excess over expenditures of $2,255,545. The expenditures this month have been by no means light, as they include such items as interest, over $9,000,000 for the War Department, over $4,500,000 for the Navy Department, and $7,500,000 for civil and miscellaneous expenditures, showing a total of $38,238,000.

Another Motor Company Formed.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 29.—Articles of incorporation have been printed and the National Electric and Motor Company, with a capital of $2,500,000. All of the stock is subscribed for by A. W. Paige, Judge George P. Carroll and Philip H. Holzer, of this city. They represent capitalists, but at this time refuse to divulge their names. The purpose for which the company is organized is to manufacture, buy and sell bicycles, motor carriages, automobiles, auto-trucks, electric vehicles, cars and conveyances and parts thereof, and all other kinds of articles made of wood or metal.

Dr. Shields's Ordained.

New York, May 29.—Dr. Charles W. Shields, of Princeton, was advanced to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church by Bishop Littlejohn of Long Island, in the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City. Professor Shields is 74 years old. He was one of the best known clergymen of the Presbyterian Church, but left that body in the fall of 1897, at the time of the Princeton Inn affair. Before that he was widely known among theologians through his writings in behalf of church unity.

Searching for Their Daughter's Body.

Aldrich Reaches New York.

New York, May 29.—Thomas Bailey Aldrich, of Boston, the poet and critic, who sailed from Vancouver, B. C., on September 14, 1898, on a trip around the world, has reached this city on board the Lucania, from Liverpool. Mr. Aldrich spent about two months in Japan, and visited remote parts of India during his tour.

STORM SWEEPS THE WEST.

Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska Are Visited by Violent Tornadoes.

WORST STORM IN YEARS.

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property Swept Away and Many Homes Wrecked.

Railroad Tracks Washed Out and Traffic Suspended at Several Points—Growing Crops Sustain Great Damage From Rain and Hail—Valuable Stock Killed and Fields Flooded.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—Chippewa and Eau Claire counties, Wisconsin, have been visited by one of the worst storms of rain and hail in the history of that section.

Chippewa Falls reports that two miles of the track on the Wisconsin Central railway was washed out at Howard and in Chippewa Falls all railroad traffic has been suspended. Southward bound trains from St. Paul and Minneapolis are tied up at Colfax, and Chicago and Milwaukee trains are held here.

Washouts are reported on the Omaha Railway. The bridge over the Elk River near Howard was carried away. Much damage was done by lightning, both in Chippewa Falls and in the country. Heavy hail fell and many windows were broken.

In Eau Claire, a very violent heavy rain did great damage. A report from Brainerd says that the water is a foot over the bridge and all of the country bridges are in danger.

Telephone and telegraph wires are down in all directions.

A large section of the log flume at Eau Claire was carried away by a fall of rock overhanging the Chippewa River. Four bridges south of the city were carried away.

La Crosse, Wis., reports a severe storm, which caused considerable damage to crops.

Omaha, Neb., May 29.—Particulars of the storm which passed over the section north of Minden show it to be one of the worst in years. Buildings were wrecked and considerable stock killed in a strip seven miles long and 200 yards wide, but no lives were lost. The progress of the storm was so slow that people had time to take to cellars and some farmers saved themselves by lying down in the furrows of plowed ground. Not a building in the path of the storm escaped, most of them being utterly destroyed.

Omaha, Neb., May 29.—A special to the Bee from Chamberlain, S. D., says: "Word has reached here of a disastrous and fatal tornado which passed over this city in the vicinity of Bijou, twenty-five miles south of this city, resulting in the death of seven persons and serious injury of three others."

Clinton, Ia., May 29.—A storm, passed over in severity a tornado, passed over this section. At Lamar barns and crops were wrecked. A deluge of water fell, flooding corn and grain fields and doing much damage.

Asks for Removal of General Merriam.

Binghamton, May 29.—At a meeting of the Central Labor Union in this city resolutions were adopted asking President McKinley to remove and court-martial Gen. Merriam. The preamble recites that the miners working for the Standard Oil were underpaid, that Merriam declared unions to be criminal societies and arrested the members; therefore the resolutions declared that his actions were tyrannical and outrageous, contrary to the spirit of the Constitution, which guarantees life liberty and the pursuit of happiness to citizens, and the secretary was requested to write President McKinley asking his removal.

Wisconsin Will Stand by the West.

Milwaukee, May 29.—Wisconsin Congressmen are gathering here for a conference at the State Capitol. Congressman Babcock, speaking of the meeting, said: "All eyes are on Wisconsin, and the action of the delegation will be of the greatest importance in deciding the result. If we agree to support some one candidate and decide to announce our choice, I know personally that three or four Western States will within a week follow our lead, and these announcements would go far toward settling the question of who shall be the next Speaker. Of course, we want a Western man if we can get him. Personally I have not given any one promises."

Another Death From Train Wrecking.

Philadelphia, May 29.—William Ohle, the 18-year-old Tamqua boy who placed a spike on the Philadelphia and Reading railway, near Snyder's crossing, which caused a wreck that resulted in the death of a young woman, and in which he is now under heavy bonds for manslaughter, must also be arrested and brought to this city to appear at the coroner's inquest in the case of John H. Short, 2075 Orleans street, who was so seriously injured in the accident that he died at the Episcopal Hospital.

Church Rules as to Elopers.

Richmond, Va., May 29.—The duty of clergymen in the marriage of eloping couples was discussed by the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church here. The Assembly decided: "It would be both unwise and inexpedient to attempt to lay down any inflexible rule for the guidance of its ministers in relation to the performance of the ceremony. It, however, urges the greatest prudence and caution by the ministers."

Little Boy Badly Burned.

Mahoning City, Pa., May 29.—Roy Lynn, aged 8 years, was badly burned on the mountains by his clothes catching fire from a blaze which he had kindled to roast potatoes. Screaming in agony the little fellow rushed toward home enveloped from head to foot. Several women seized and wrapped him in a piece of carpet, thus extinguishing the flames. His face, head and back were badly burned.

IF MERITS ATTENTION.

A NEW PREPARATION WHICH CURES DYSPEPSIA AND STOMACH TROUBLE.

Remarkable Curative Properties.

A new remedy, which may revolutionize the treatment of stomach troubles, has recently been placed before the public and bears the endorsement of many leading physicians and scientific men.

The remedy is not a wonderful secret discovery, nor a patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except indigestion and stomach trouble, with which nine-tenths of our nation are afflicted.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant-tasting tablets or lozenges containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure aspartic peptin (free from animal impurities) bismuth and Golden Seal; they are sold by druggists generally under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Many interesting experiments made with these tablets show that they possess remarkable digestive power, owing to the active principle being sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 times its own weight of lean meat, eggs, oatmeal or similar wholesome foods; these tablets do not act on the bowels like after dinner pills, nor in fact do they act upon any particular organ but in the manner in which they cure all forms of indigestion is this: They act entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it completely, nourishing every tissue, adding nerve to the body; they simply perform the work of digestion, thus giving the weak stomach rest and assistance sufficient to enable it to recover its normal strength. This is the reason so many pretended cures have signally failed; they do not furnish the digestive power which is the one thing above all others that the stomach of the dyspeptic lacks, and unless that lack is supplied, it is waste of time to attempt to restore the enfeebled stomach by means of "tonics," "stomach bitters," and "pills" no permanent good can result from their use.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover; this is the secret and the whole secret of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a year ago and now the most popular, widely used dyspepsia remedy, everywhere a success secured almost entirely on its merits, as it has never been extensively advertised.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are now sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package; if he hasn't them in stock he will order them for you from his wholesale house. They are made by the F. A. Stuart Co., chemists, Marshall, Mich., who will be pleased to send information and testimonials from every state in the Union.

GREENLAND.

GREENLAND, May 31.

Lawrence Hughes and Sadie Holmes of Newburyport were visitors in town yesterday.

Mrs. J. L. Godfrey and Lizzie Lowd spent Memorial day in Exeter.

Master Elmer Wiggin was in Stratham yesterday.

I journeyed to Stratham yesterday in hopes to see a ball game between the Strathams and Exeter high school. There was what they called a ball game at Stratham hill, but it put me in mind of a combination of cricket, lawn tennis and marbles. The only player worthy of the name of ball player was the pitcher of the Exeter team, he making some fine stops, handling the ball nearly every time he had a chance. We think that Stratham ought to brace up a little.

That fellow who wrote such an insulting answer to our base ball team's challenge told the truth about not being in our class, for he is not, for we fully believe that every member of the Greenland base ball team is a gentleman, and that surely puts us several classes above a team who can use such insulting language as this certain team did. Teams must understand that the players are not responsible for things said about them in some of our cheap newspapers.

Mr. Archie Crowell and wife spent Memorial day in Dover.

DEATH WITHOUT WARNING.

Through Passenger Train on Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern Thrown Into a Ditch.

Unfortunate Passengers and Splintered Wreckage Piled Together in a Confused Mass—Grade Under Twenty Feet of Track Washed Away—Engineer and Fireman Escaped Uninjured.

Waterloo, Iowa, May 29.—The through train from Chicago to Minneapolis over the Rock Island and Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern Railways was wrecked at the crossing of Slick Creek, about four miles southeast of this place. The train consisted of six coaches, including mail and baggage car, two passenger coaches and sleeper. Nine persons were killed and nine injured. The wreck was caused by washing out of track.

A cloudburst had washed the sand and gravel roadbed, leaving the track unsupported for a stretch of twenty feet. The rails and ties held together, and there was nothing to indicate the insecurity of the road. The engine struck the washout and was derailed in the ditch beside the track, and the cars were piled up in a confused heap. The mail car tipped over and was telescoped by the baggage car, while the rear end of the baggage car in turn telescoped the smoker. The roof of the sleeper plowed its way through the day coach, while the lower half of the coach crashed through the sleeper.

The engineer and fireman jumped from the train and escaped with slight injuries.

The dead are: George Walnwright, conductor, residence, Burlington; David I. Hall, Minneapolis; F. S. Carpenter, St. Louis, conductor Pullman coaches; W. A. McLaughlin, Minneapolis, sales agent of the H. C. Akeley Lumber Company; E. L. Arnold, Minneapolis, firm of Sawyer & Arnold, lumber company; R. H. Schweppes, Alton, Ill.; E. J. Barker, Hot Springs, Ark.; O. R. Hopkins, address unknown, not fully identified.

Those most seriously injured are: W. E. Schollan, Waterloo, Ia., left arm removed to release him from car, amputation made at shoulder joint, otherwise injured, may recover; S. H. Bushor, Waterloo, internal injuries; W. F. Burke, Cedar Falls, right eye badly injured, laceration of face and bruises; D. W. Fleming, Albert Lea, Minn., flagman, shoulder joint dislocated; C. W. Whitney, expressman, injured about the head; William Haden, Chicago, wounded about the head, fingers cut; A. D. Morris, Cedar Rapids, wounded over the eye and on the head; J. H. Bates, Toledo, right arm and leg bruised; W. J. Stevenson, St. Paul, bruised; Edward Drummond, Lincoln, Ill., breast and internal injuries; Jerry Murphy, Castle Doon, Ireland, head cut and leg bruised; Mrs. M. E. Myers, Prentice, Wis., injured about head; Emil Johnson, Norwood, N. D., internal injuries; Nora Neal, dressed Alton, Ill., head and chest injured; W. B. Arnold, Minneapolis, internal injuries.

Will Schollan of Waterloo, one of the worst injured, was caught by the arm under a beam and could not be extricated. He urged that the arm be cut off. When his friends saw that there was no hope of saving the arm they sawed it off with a common hand saw before the physicians arrived.

The wounded were all taken to Cedar Rapids and sent to hospitals.

Imprisoned Miners Released.

Shenandoah, Pa., May 29.—John Barwick, aged 33 years, after being closed in the mines for ten hours at Kneakerbocker Colliery, was rescued alive by the heroic efforts of fellow-workmen. A fall of coal occurred, shutting Barwick tightly in. His rescuers set to work to liberate him. They found him piled down by a large lump of coal. He was cut and bruised about the head and body, and almost died from the loss of blood and fear of being buried alive.

Two Republican Conventions.

Cleveland, O., May 29.—This city of sensational and political activity enjoyed the distinction and novelty of two Republican county conventions, both of which selected delegations to the Republican State Convention, and neither of which accomplished anything in the line of harmony among the Republican factions. Both conventions, however, adopted strong resolutions against the trusts and pledged their delegations to work for an anti-trust plank at the State convention.

ELOQUENT WORDS.

"The War and Its Results," was the subject selected by Rev. John P. Chidwick, U. S. N., for his lecture at Music hall on Monday evening and our citizens are indebted to City of Portsmouth Council, Knights of Columbus, for being permitted to hear the talented young orator. It was without exception the most thoroughly interesting lecture ever heard in Music hall and a more eloquent speaker has not occupied a platform in this city within the memory of the oldest person present at the lecture.

His subject was one that the American people are alive to its full meaning and he thrilled the hearts of his listeners with stirring words and beautiful sentiments contained in the many eloquent passages during his lecture.

The story of the horrible massacre of the brave men of the "Maine," as it came from his lips, was listened to with the closest interest and storm after storm of applause greeted his patriotic words as he carried his audience through the entire history of the war, from the day the Maine sailed into Havana until Cervera returned to Spain. It was a lecture that contained teachings gathered during the war that will be instilled into the memories of all who had the pleasure of hearing him.

The distinguished speaker, who has charmed the American people with his eloquence arrived in this city at 5:20 in the afternoon, was met by a committee from the Knights of Columbus and driven to the Rockingham where he was met by a large number of well-known citizens, including many prominent navy officers, who dined with the chaplain.

At eight o'clock the party marched from the Rockingham to Music hall. At 8:10 o'clock, the curtain was raised and the orator was escorted to the stage by Mayor Page and Captain J. B. Coghlan, U. S. N., amid great applause. Seated on the stage were: His Honor Mayor Page, Captain J. B. Coghlan, U. S. N., Pay Director Henry M. Dennison, U. S. N., Captain Harrington, U. S. N., Pay Inspector Joseph Foster, U. S. N., Lieut. Stephen Decatur, Colonel Robert L. Meade, U. S. M. C., Hon. John W. Emery, Hon. John J. Laskey, Rev. Alfred Gooding, Rev. L. H. Thayer, Rev. J. J. Bradley, Rev. Joseph Creedon, John Griffin, District Deputy Dr. James Sullivan, of Manchester; W. J. Kelly, G. W. McCarthy, Geo. S. Kirvan, Hon. John H. Broughton, W. H. Moore, James Whitman, State Secretary W. T. Morrissey and F. W. Hartford. When the audience ceased applauding, Grand Knight John Kirvan of the Knights of Columbus introduced Captain J. B. Coghlan, U. S. N., as the chairman of the lecture and the applause that greeted him was tremendous. He was very brief in his remarks, he hit the popular chord. Chaplain Chidwick was given a greeting that he may well feel proud of and all through his lecture he was cordially received.

The following is an abstract of his lecture which occupied nearly two hours in its delivery: I know that these words and your attendance here tonight are not given to me alone, nor to me principally, but rather to me as I represent those men in whose honor you have gathered, and over whose consecrated remains it was my duty to read the last, but consoling, offices of our holy religion.

Sometimes I have thought it rather incongruous that I, a priest, should speak triumphantly of war. I have thought that people might think it inconsistent with the mission of a priest, which is to foster peace among men and to establish it between man and God. The priest is unworthy of the Master who does not breathe peace with every breath of his nostrils. How, then, do I justify my words glorifying war?

After all has been said that can be said of the horrors of war, it still remains that there are certain circumstances under which war is not only justifiable, but absolutely necessary. There are times when a people have been crushed in all of the rights of a nation which God has given to them; when all measures of redress for their wrongs have been spurned and continued. Beyond that they see the gleam of freedom. Then it is that they are prompted to bare their breasts to the lightning and place their reliance, through God, in the argument of force.

No nation can see its people how their heads in shame before the rest of the people of the world. The nation's honor is the nation's soul; it is the nation's spirit and must be kept alive. In that war through which we have just passed did we not have the freedom of an oppressed nation at stake? Did we not have the honor of the flag and the blood of the martyr who had been doing his duty for God and humanity? But not until divine providence took the course of events into its own hands, and brought upon us that calamity, that sacrifice, through whose lurid light we could read plainly the lesson of unhappy Cuba—not until then did we rise up in might to vindicate them, and to assert our honor before God and the world.

It was not idle curiosity that brought this audience here. It was fond recollection. And thus it is that I am willing to speak to audiences, not to satisfy curiosity, but a living love. I thank God that our people preserve this love in their hearts now, after a year of great history in the land.

Referring to the events of the past 12 months, Fr. Chidwick said: Notwithstanding her admiration, her joy over unexpected results, notwithstanding her sorrow over the sacrifices that have been demanded, thank God, America has not forgotten the early heroes of our cause, whose deaths she well regards as the first chapter in the Spanish American war. In their names, and with all my heart I thank you for this remembrance, and pray that it will sink deeper into your hearts and the hearts of all our people!

The lecturer asked why the Maine was sent to Havana, and he went briefly over the events on the island, dealing with the administration of Campos, Blanco and Weyler, on the last of whom he placed the blame for the trouble.

We were no longer, he continued, to see American citizens in foreign lands in time of danger seeking the protection of a foreign flag, running into the office of a foreign consulate, and going upon the ships of foreign nations. We had to have one of our ships there, and even though that ship was destroyed, and hundreds of lives were sacrificed, thank God, we had the courage, the interest of our people at heart, to send another ship to take her place.

I have heard it asked, Why should we honor the men of the Maine? They were not called upon to stand in the glare of fierce conflict. But they went to Havana, prepared for conflict, not knowing what would be asked of them for their country's need, willingly, with all their hearts. Even though they did not have a chance to raise an arm in self defense, still, they died by their posts of duty, and they deserve all the honor that we can give them, all the honor you have given to their comrades who died in the shock and shriek of battle.

Fr. Chidwick described the trip of the Maine from the Dry Tortugas to Havana and the succeeding occurrences. On the night of Feb 14 the rumor reached the ship that something was going to happen, but the fatal day was the next one.

He spoke of the horrible scenes of the wreck, and stated that some of the Spanish papers asserted that the officers of the Maine were not on board the ship that night. Some American papers copied this insulting reference to the officers. But it was a lie which it was hard to forget, though it might be forgiven. Referring to the "yellow" journals, he said that we are to remember that these papers were not under the supervision of the government, but with the Spanish papers it was entirely different. This lie, to be sanctioned by the government of Cuba on the day following the disaster, is a crime which we cannot forget, even though with our Christian feeling we might forgive it.

The chaplain warmly praised the kindness of the Havana doctors and hospital people and dwelt enthusiastically on the fact that the next morning after the explosion the stars and stripes still floated over the Maine.

The lecturer said that he had seen a statement in the papers reflecting on the bishop of Havana and he wished to say that he found the bishop not only a real and true priest, but also a man in his heart and sympathy.

Fr. Chidwick spoke of a number of the Maine's sailors, including Anthony, the marine and Jerry Shea of whom he told one or two stories. He paid high tribute to the captain of the Maine; also to the second in command, Lieutenant commander Wainwright, the mention of whose name called forth applause, and he hoped the men would be judged in the same way.

He said he had no patience with those people who say that we forced the war upon Spain. The history of the conspiracy was filled with the peaceful settlement of our international difficulties, and the whole world should have stood by and admired the spectacle of 70,000,000 people conquering patiently their wrath and awaiting the decision of a careful and just investigation before they gave their voice for war.

He said he believed there were few other nations who would have done it; few other powerful nations who would not have sent their warships to Havana the next morning and demanded satisfaction at the cannon's mouth. But we did not. The first chapter of the war was written in treachery through the blood of the American sailor, but the succeeding chapters were not written in the blood of either the American sailor or soldier.

The lecturer touched eloquently on the patriotism manifested in the country during the war; on the work of the Red Cross nurses and the sisters of religion, and the devotion of mothers, etc., and he expressed satisfaction that the fears expressed that race and sectarian troubles would follow the war had not been realized.

Referring to the fear of American arms that obtains abroad, he said that the most powerful of all the nations,

RALEIGH'S GROUNDING UN-AVOIDABLE.

Admiral Remy, composing a court of inquiry appointed to investigate the circumstances of the recent grounding of the cruiser Raleigh at the entrance of the harbor of Charleston, S. C., has reported to the navy department that the accident was unavoidable and was due mainly to the recent changes in the channel made by the army engineers in operations for the improvement of the harbor, with which charges the navigation officers of the naval vessel were not in position to be informed until too late. The damage to the Raleigh was trifling and can be easily repaired. Inasmuch as Admiral Remy found no one at fault, it is not likely that any further action will be taken by the department.

of water was turned upon him. Drenched with water instantly, he jumped about in subject terror. Never was an animal more surprised. He dashed bullets and steel, but succumbed to cold water.

Completely cowed and as meek as the proverbial lamb, he took refuge in his cage. While the sailors covered the opening in the cage with a powerful stream of water, and the tiger lay trembling in one corner, the mate boldly approached and repaired the twisted bars. As soon as the sailors stopped playing on the tiger he became as furious as ever and made desperate efforts to escape, but the bars had been securely adjusted.

Since being placed in Forepaugh and Sells' menagerie, where he is confined in a specially strong cage, he has torn the arms and shoulders of two employees through the steel bars of his lair, and no man can be found among the several experienced and courageous wild beast trainers with the show who is daring enough to enter his den and face him. They believe he can never be subdued. The circus people have named him "Satan."

If any of the ambitious youth of the city would like to attempt the subjection of this famous beast, and thereby obtain everlasting renown, a prize so dear to the juvenile heart—the management of the big dual show may be induced to furnish them an opportunity on the occasion of their now rapidly approaching visit here.

MUST HAVE BEEN HOUSE CLEANING.

A novel manner of informing visitors that the occupants of a house are "not at home" or that they will not receive callers, was noticed in front of a residence, the other afternoon. The head of the house had placed the lawn hose in such a manner that it threw a stream directly across the front steps, and no visitor could hope to reach the front door without a wetting.

PROMPTLY DISCHARGED.

The case of alleged assault by Valentine Hett on Mrs. John Tredegar was heard on Monday evening in police court before Judge Adams, who discharged the respondent, the evidence in the interest of the plaintiff failing to substantiate the charge. No one who knows Mr. Hett has believed for a moment that there was any foundation for the proceedings against him, and all have predicted that the case would end as it has.

A FAMOUS POISON CASE.

Anna Maria Zwanziger is a Name of Unpleasant Prominence in Crime.

SHE LIVED IN GERMANY.

Had a Reputation for Honesty and Probity Which Enabled Her to Secure Victims Very Easily.

Mental Constitution Peculiar—Had Passion for Poisoning—Her Crimes Only "Slight Errors"—Never Expressed Remorse or Repentance—Fortunate she was Discovered as she Could Not Control Passion.

In the so-called renaissance period of European civilization poison served many a purpose of political intrigue and personal vengeance. The demise of a victim was rarely followed by a judicial investigation save in instances where the ecclesiastical authorities found an opportunity to intervene.

In the early part of the nineteenth century there was a class of murderers committed in Germany which have given to the name of Anna Maria Zwanziger an unpleasant prominence in the annals of crime. Anna Maria Zwanziger, or Anna Schoulen, as she called herself, was living in 1807 in Balreuth supporting herself by knitting. Her reputation for probity and her exemplary mode of life induced Justice Glaser, who was at that time separated from his wife, to take her as his housekeeper in 1808. In July of that year Glaser was reconciled to his wife, through the efforts, it seems, of Anna Schoulen, but within a month after the wife's return she was suddenly taken sick, though a strong and healthy woman, and died in a few days. Anna now left Glaser's service and went to live as housekeeper with Justice Grohmann. He was a sufferer from gout and was confined to his bed. In May, 1809 after an illness of eleven days, accompanied by strange symptoms, he died, and his housekeeper appeared inconsolable. Her good name and her skill as a nurse soon procured her another place, this time at Magistrate Gebhard's house, as nurse for his wife. Soon after her arrival, Miss Gebhard was seized with a violent illness and died in great agony. At different times within the next few months curious and suspicious symptoms—vomiting, spasms, etc.—visited several persons in the house, guests as well as members of the household.

Then a superstitious fear of the woman's unlucky presence, gradually deepening into distrust and suspicion, spread in the neighborhood, and Gebhard was induced to dismiss Anna from his service. He gave her, however, a written character for honesty and fidelity. But it was at her departure the strangest occurrences were noticed. On the morning of that day, it was afterward remembered, she had exceeded the usual limits of her duties, she had filled the kitchen with a box from the barrel and had taken pains to make for the two maids some coffee, which they drank. Leaving the house with every sign of cheerfulness and affection, she took Gebhard's child in her arms as she said farewell and gave it a biscuit soaked in milk. Scarcely half an hour had elapsed since her departure when the child became alarmingly ill. In a few hours the maids were attacked in a similar way, and the kitchen salt box, with the barrel, proved, upon examination, to contain a quantity of arsenic. When she was apprehended shortly afterward a packet of arsenic was found in her pocket, and upon examining the bodies of Glaser, Grohmann and Gebhard distinct traces of arsenic were discovered in the three corpses. She was taken before a magistrate, and here the peculiar features of continental criminal procedure were strikingly brought out.

The circumstantial evidence of murder against her was in reality not strong. Now, the favorite German mode of obtaining results in criminal cases is by some means or other to extract a confession, and here, evidently, only a confession could furnish the necessary evidence. According to the most approved methods, therefore, she was subjected to a long series of rigid examinations alone in the presence of the judge and a notary. All the cunning and adroitness of the judge were brought to bear, in order to entrap her into a confession, but for nearly six months, from October 19, 1810, until April 13, 1811, she refused to confess. Every form of the charge against her. The fact that poison had been found in the two corpses was not announced to Anna Zwanziger until April 13. This produced the desired effect, for after two hours of stubborn composure, she broke down, wept, wrung her hands, and at length confessed to all the charges against her, and to several other murders that had passed for natural deaths. On September 11, 1811, she suffered death at the block, and her name is celebrated throughout Germany as the most infamous poisoner ever known.

There can be no doubt that her mental constitution was peculiar. She had a passion for poisoning and spoke of her deeds as only "slight errors" and "trifling offenses," never expressing any remorse or repentance. It was indeed fortunate for mankind, as she said, that she was to die, for she never could have ceased to poison.

THREE QUEER CASES.

Taken From a Detective's Note Book—Story of a Long-Haired Man—Young Woman Wanted to Know Him.

Detective work is a thing of system and organization nowadays, and the good managing detective is not a man of many disguises, but is a shrewd individual, who works from his private office, handles his men without fussing and follows their progress by receiving daily reports; you might be around a first-class detective head-quarters for a month without seeing the men who are kept in the field covering cases.

"Detectives are sometimes called upon to do the queerest kind of work," said a Chicago sleuth.

"I had a visitor to call on me last summer that I don't mind telling you, but I told her to speak out frankly. After she got started she was quite confidential. It seemed that she had been in New York City the week before and there she had met on the street on two separate occasions a man who impressed her greatly. She told me he was the handsomest man she had ever seen, and she felt sure from his distinguished features and the fact that his hair was rather long, that he was either a poet or artist, but had not spoken to her and she knew absolutely nothing about him except that he had been in New York on the day mentioned.

"I asked her why she was so anxious to find him, and she replied that he had made a great impression on her, and that she felt that he had been attracted by her appearance. As her description was rather indefinite, and as she wasn't sure of anything except that he was the handsomest man she had ever seen, I told her it would be rather difficult for me to send an operator to New York to find him. Well, she was badly disappointed, said she was willing to spend money to find him, that she never could forgive him, and all that, but I had to decline the case. I told her there were plenty of good men who didn't have long hair."

"One case I remember distinctly. A man came into my office and told me a story about a young woman he had seen on the street car about a week before. 'I saw her several times,' he said, 'and each time on the car going south, she alighted at a certain place, and I walked east. I have been thinking about her ever since, she was so beautiful, and now I want to find out who she is and where she is stopping.' 'He seemed to be a decent sort of a fellow, and was so much in earnest that I agreed to help him. I had one of my men riding up and down on the car for days at a time, and shadowing her, and finally we located a young woman who was boarding at a place on the avenue, and answered the description closely. The man paid about $75 for the name and address of the young woman, and said he would find some way of becoming acquainted with her. I don't know how he made out, as he never returned to see me after he was given the address.

"I will give you a queer instance where it did not pay to give the truth in a case I operated recently. A wealthy lady living in Germantown, Philadelphia, who has a large house and a number of servants, sent for me through her attorney, and said that from time to time for several months sums of money and articles of jewelry had been stolen from her and her son, and she had reason to believe that the servants were guilty of the theft. 'She wanted me personally to investigate the case, so I assumed the position of second coachman, and made myself useful around the house. In a few days I was on friendly terms with the other servants, but I could not learn anything until I turned my attention to the son, a swift young fellow of twenty years. Within a week I saw the young man slipping and snaking money that had been placed in the mother's room. I shadowed the fellow and saw him sell a ring, and when I thought I had a clear case I reported to the lady of the house that her son was the thief. She would not believe a word of it. 'Why, he has missed a lot of things himself,' she said. Of course the son denied it, and she believed him, and refused to pay the bill for services until I threatened to sue her. The young man had been gambling and sporting, and when his mother would not give him any more money he would steal."

Wrecked by Superstition.
"Yes, superstition broke me," said the ex-gambler, as perceiving that the next man to him had a squint he crossed his fingers. 'I had heard of the luck that a humpback is certain to furnish, and I was sure that I could win at right, and now I wish I hadn't. He had a hump that was a wonder. It was two feet high at least. I took him to Europe, with the intention of cleaning out the bank at Monte Carlo. Going over on the steamer I made a little money, and I could see a glorious finish. From London to Nice I nearly ruined my bank roll by constantly rubbing it against my misfortune. The first time I lost I made a long story short, I'll just say that in spite of my humpbacked friend I dropped my roll at roulette before we had been in the Casino two hours. I had just a 1,000-franc note left and my insect, who was as badly broken up as I was, begged me to let him play that in himself. I consented because I didn't see how the luck could be any worse. The first deal that he made was to put a limit bet on the double zero, but when he won I fainted by the time the dealers brought me to be was playing on velvet a foot thick and never turned a hair or winked an eye until the croupier announced stolidly that the bank was broken.

"I was the happiest man in the world then, I guess, but not for long, as I came back in the steamer. No, I didn't lose it back. In fact, I didn't get a chance, for when I asked my humpback to divide he said 'Sit. I regarded him of how well I had treated him and begged him to at least tip me off to the secret of his success. He untied his coat, loosened a few straps and tossed me over a most artistic artificial hump. 'That's it,' he said.

"Ah, yes, superstition has ruined many a good man."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Tommy Paw. who was it said the voice of the people is the voice of God? Mr. Eliza—I've been told, but I'll bet he didn't say just after getting defeated at the polls.

THEY MUST WEAR CLOTHES.

The American Government Issues an Edict Concerning Porto Rican Children.

NAKED IN THE STREETS.

A Common Sight on the Island Since Ponce de Leon Founded the First Settlement at Caparra in 1509.

Camera Enthusiasts Frightened Them and Gen. Henry's Order Came as a Protection—Corporal Witt Who Did Not Speak Spanish Had Many Interesting Adventures in Enforcing the Order.

Before the Americans went to Porto Rico the little black and white boys and girls of the poorer part of the community played in the streets of San Juan and other towns unmolested. They chose the street pavement for a playground because they had no back yards. And it, in those days of Spanish rule, they neglected to dress, neither citizen nor policeman bothered them, for unclothed children, between the ages of 2 and 6 years, have been a common sight on the island since Ponce de Leon founded the first settlement at Caparra in the year 1509. For nearly 400 years, then, children enjoyed themselves, unnoticed, by taking sun baths on the front doorstep, eating their fill of oranges and lemons and by rolling on the dirty pavement. But when the American troops took possession of the island government these little people began a life of misery and trouble. At first the soldiers stared at them. Later business men came from the United States, and, taking rooms with the better-off families on the second floor, began to stumble over the same pickaninnies on the doorstep. Camera enthusiasts then followed them into the house by a mysterious shaped box and even paid the mothers a few coppers to drag the little forms back into the sunlight. But the native children found protection and comfort in the new health law made by Gen. Henry.

"No children will be allowed in the street unless they are properly clothed." On the day following the promulgation of the order forty native policemen and ten American Corporals, or roundsmen, began a crusade against unclothed children. Native policemen, of course, easily made the mothers understand that the children, if not properly dressed, must be kept out of sight of the public. And as the law took effect immediately, for the next six hours, or until emergency shirts, trousers and dresses could be procured, the hordes of little natives were missing from the streets.

But in the suburban villages of Puerto de Tierra and Santurce, Corporal A. P. Witt, who like eight of his Yankee comrades in San Juan could not speak Spanish fluently, at first found the new health law very troublesome. He saw plenty of unclothed children, but as his Spanish vocabulary consisted of only malo, bueno and si, Senor, which he knew meant respectively bad, good and yes, sir, he could not make the mothers understand the purpose of his visit. At the first house he interpreted the order partly by the sign language. He captured a little black 4-year-old youngster, who naturally began to cry, and led him to his mother.

"Malo, malo," said the Corporal, pointing to the unclothed lad, referring, of course, to his nudity.
"Si, Senor," replied the mother.
"He needs some clothes."
"Si, Senor," said the mother.
"Well, put some on him, for Gen. Henry says that all the children in the street must wear proper clothing," and the Corporal, pointing again to the frightened little boy, said "Malo, malo."

"Si, Senor," repeated the mother, who, upon hearing the police officer say malo, malo, interpreted his speech as the recital of some crime he had committed against the peace. Accordingly she started to whip him.
"No, no, no," interrupted the puzzled officer. And in order to make himself better understood, he picked up an old shirt waist, wrapped this covering around the pickaninny, and then added, "Bueno, bueno." His object lesson evidently proved more successful than his Spanish and English speech, for the mother soon returned his smile of approval with a series of affirmative nods and "Si, Senors."

Corporal Witt was gratified at the final success of his first interview, but before two more mothers had been instructed he decided that in order to save time and trouble he would call a mothers' meeting and explain the new law to all at one time. For an interpreter he secured an elderly English negress from St. Thomas, who notified twenty-five mothers of the convention. They assembled in the back yard of a neighbor, and wondered, of course, the object of this unusual meeting. But their curiosity was satisfied soon by the statement that all the children, as well as the older persons, must wear clothes in public places, for such an order had been issued by Gen. Henry. Such a reformatory measure, the Corporal noticed, greatly astonished the mothers. But before they had recovered their surprise he told them that in the United States all the little children always wore a proper dress. He added further that as the little children of Porto Rico would be citizens soon of the same Government they also should adopt the dress of civilization. But in the general discussion which followed the Corporal learned from his interpreter that more than half the mothers present had neither money nor time for dresses. So he immediately started a mothers' benefit fund. From well-to-do Porto Ricans, American residents and soldiers he easily collected 20 pesos for 200 yards of calico. He then distributed the cloth among a few volunteer dressmakers, and instructed them to make knee trousers and short jackets for the boys and little Mother Hubbards for the girls.

It is an inopportune man who cannot entertain an idea.
Whenever a man fails in an undertaking he attributes it to fatalism.

HAWAIIAN SPORT.

An Old-Time Incident of the Indulgence of Royal Dames.

The old practice of surf sliding, "he'e-nalu," upon soft boards, was a magnificent sport. It has fallen almost entirely into disuse since forty years ago, when horses became numerous and cheap. Before that date I used frequently to see it at Lahaina, as well as earlier at Kailua. I believe some adepts still practice it at Hilo. The board used in surf sliding is from five to eight feet long and ten to fifteen inches wide, rounded at the ends and sharpish at the edges, very much like a paper cutter. The rider swims out with the board under one arm, diving under the rollers and outside where the surf is just beginning to break. There, by an adroit movement, he stretches himself upon the board just in front of a big roller at the same time violently plucking arms and legs to get a move on. While the roller lifts him from behind. Once in motion the wave does the rest, although great skill is needed to keep the board poised precisely at the proper height and inclination upon the front of the violently breaking roller. The riders will thus shoot several hundred yards to the shore.

By early and long practice great skill was attained in this sport. The more expert would often rise to a standing posture, balancing their boards by their feet at the right point on the wave. I can remember in early boyhood daily watching from my home through the stems of the lofty cocon palm scores of natives flying in together in the white, roaring surf. Some were prone, others crouching on their boards and some standing erect. Both sexes participated, and modesty was much at a discount, except when the venerated missionary was in sight. The males wore the malo or breech girdle when disporting thus in our neighborhood. The females did not stand up on their boards.

Customs in those early days were Arcadian. At about 1824 the writer's young mother at Kailua once received in her thatched cottage a morning call from a bevy of royal dames with their attendants, all fresh from surf play. The maidens carried the garments while their mistresses stalked into the missionary's parlor in stately simplicity and proceeded to dress. All that was utterly innocent, and so in a certain sense was the nearly naked constraint of domestic morals in those early days. To infuse some degree of conscience on that point has been altogether the most difficult part of the missionary's task in Hawaii. To most of the Ten Commandments the Hawaiian was easily amenable. But the importance of the seventh did not readily come home to him.

Slaves in the Philippines.

The attention of the authorities has been called to the fact that slavery is rampant in Sulu, Mindoro, Tawee Tawee and other of the Philippine Islands.

If you wish to become a slaveholder you may go to one of the three islands mentioned and purchase a bagged girl for $3. One was offered at that rate to Prof. Dean C. Worcester, United States Commissioner. The usual price for girls of 15 years is five bushels of rice. Grown men and women sell at prices proportionately greater.

The chief Philippine slave market and port for their export now is Malabun, the old capital of Sulu. Harun Narrasid, the Mohammedan Sultan of Sulu, is the central factor of the slaveholding and slave-selling business of the entire group. The Moros, who are the Mohammedan Malay subjects of this hitherto semi-official prince, continue, though upon a somewhat limited scale, the practices of their ancestors, the bloodthirsty Malay pirates who redden Philippine waters for several centuries. No admixture of blood could be more favorable to slave holding than that of Malay and Mohammedan, according to Prof. Otis Mason, the noted ethnologist. Among their slaves are found Malays captured from Sumatra, Papuans from New Guinea, Siamese, Javanese and Timorese. By collecting them within their dominion the Sulu masters have aided greatly in producing the peculiar mixture of stocks which now bothers anthropologists.

Piratical expeditions are still gathering force, and the capture of the safe attack in neighboring islands. These warlike Moros of Sulu and the islands thereabout, moreover, adhere to the ancient barbarous custom of casting into slavery such of their captives of war as do not suffer death. Their most ready customers for aboriginal men and women for many years have been the Dutch planters in the island of Borneo, to the southwest.

More criminal even than this piratical slave gathering is the custom of selling innocent children into bondage, generally practiced by the Mohammedan Malays. The parent who is in need of money lends, or rather, gives his child as security for the loan, and the little one is condemned to labor until the debt is paid, which seldom, if ever, occurs. Very few children thus sold into slavery ever regain their freedom.
Moro warriors try the edges of their weapons by striking down their slaves, according to Professor Worcester. More slaves in Sulu represent all phases of slavery practiced in ancient or modern times—slaves by birth, slaves by capture in war or by piracy, bonded children and insolvent debtors.

CURIO HUNTING IN HAVANA.

Incidents of the Hunt for Mementos in the Cuban Pawnshops.

TOURISTS GET CAUGHT.

How the Shrewd Yankee Sometimes Overmatches the Equally Shrewd Spaniard.

To Return From Havana Without a Memento Is Uncommon—A Washington Woman After a Long Hunt Brought Home In Despair a Rusty Second-Hand Tin Dipper.

Havana pawnshops have irresistible attractions for American visitors. To return home without any spoils of the chase is a reflection on one's ability which the practiced relic-hunter does not permit. It was a Washington woman who, in outright despair, stopped at a cheap junk shop and bought a rusty second-hand tin dipper for a peseta, which is 20 cents in Spanish money. Being wise in her knowledge of human nature, she refused all explanations beyond a mysterious hint that the tin dipper might have a history. She was envied, but not imitated, because a second rusty tin dipper with a history would be received with suspicion.

At a pawnshop on Compostella street, a collector in search of scores of persistent selectors had picked until there was literally nothing left, had been examined listlessly and the searcher was turning away in disappointment. The owner pulled out from under the showcase an ancient medallion. He offered it hesitatingly and with apologies for the trifle. He thought it might answer. Probably it would not have answered had not a ray of sunlight happened to strike the face of the medallion. The searcher after novelties was an old hand. He could catalogue all the pawnshops and like establishments in Havana. He betrayed no surprise. Handling the medallion carefully in the shadow, he asked differently, "How much? A dollar?" "No, no, senor. It is really curious. Two cents" ($11).

"What!?"
"Don't be in a hurry, senor. Seven dollars for a half."
"Two dollars."
"A cent, senor."
"Three dollars and a half."
And the bargain was clinched at $3.50 in Spanish silver.

The next day the place and all similar places were filled with Americans and Cubans hunting medallions. The proprietor of the first-named shop comprehended it. He had no more medallions, but he had a number of cheap mosaics. Some of them might have been worth $3. He calmly asked $15 each for them and got it in two cases from gullible Americans. So when the original purchaser strolled in to buy a 50-cent shell cameo, the proprietor was in good humor and offered a mosaic worth a dollar for 2 cents, with the suggestion that it would be a small contribution towards equalizing the previous transaction. He did not know the history of the medallion and did not remember how it came into his hands. If he had remembered, probably the senor American would not have obtained it so cheaply, he casually remarked, in polite Castilian. Probably not. Though its history is unknown, its like has not been found in Havana and the purchaser is content.

The lucky finds or bargains are distributed as unevenly as the gifts of the gods. And they are as rare as the Spanish merchant, though he may lack in fertility of invention, knows how to charge four prices from a purchaser who wants something. In the first blush of their experience the American visitors learned to pick out the article they want and then send a Cuban or a Spanish friend around to make the purchase. The plan worked well for a short time. Then the shopkeepers calmly treated and quadrupled their prices. "An American wants that," was the only reply they would give to the indignant and voluble remonstrances of their Latin customers. And the Americans had to pay. Yet sometimes they were victorious. The wife of an officer in one of the Illinois volunteer regiments discovered among a lot of trash in a place on O'Reilly street a pair of unique and quaintly-carved brass stirrups. She, too, was an experienced relic hunter. She made two or three slight purchases, and then, pointing to the stirrups, inquired, "How much?" "Six cents, $30," was the reply. "Some day I'll give you $5 for them," she said, pleasantly, as she departed.

The shop had a considerable trade and the presence of American customers was not looked upon as a suspicious circumstance. Those who heard of the "find" and made surreptitious examinations of the stirrups would have welcomed the opportunity to have paid $30 for them. But the right of the original discoverer was respected. The original discoverer made occasional visits to the shop, always announcing that she would take the stirrups whenever they were marked down to $5. One day a blundering cavalryman from Texas happened to see them. "Give you $20 for those stirrups," he said to the clerk. The cavalryman was not in the secret and was not, therefore, blameworthy, but his companion could have choked him. The fates were kindly. The clerk called the proprietor. Before the price that had been offered could be repeated, the shopkeeper shook his head. He was very polite and very sorry, but the stirrups had been promised an American lady who was likely to call any day. Three days later the colonel's wife was receiving the congratulations of the entire staff of Camp Columbia on her trophies and of the wives and daughters of the entire staff on her bargain.

We've often wondered what will become of the self-made man in the final round up.
A man gets the last word in an argument with a woman, but it's because she gives it to him.

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION.

Weak Women Strong, And Sick Women Well.

It is made from a formula of Dr. R. V. Pierce, the celebrated specialist in diseases of women at Buffalo, N. Y. It is a strictly scientific medicine, containing neither alcohol, opium or other narcotic poison. Its protracted use does not create a craving for intoxicating stimulants or deadly narcotics. It cures irregularities, displacements, drains, ulcerations, inflammation, headache, backache and nervousness. It prepares the way for almost painless maternity, and insures robustness to the newborn child. It cures women at home and does away with obnoxious questioning and local examinations.
Some medicine dealers offer substitutes when you ask for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This imitates the medicine in appearance as nearly as the law will allow, but they cannot imitate its record of thirty years of cures.
Mrs. Mattie Vaughan, of Topeka, Hancock Co., Ill., writes: "I had been sick for seven years, not in bed, but just dragging myself around. At last I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and five of Golden Medical Discovery, and it is impossible to describe in words the good these medicines did me. Neither the 'Discovery' nor the 'Favorite Prescription' contains any alcohol, opium or other narcotic."

WON ON TIME ALLOWANCE.
After figuring out the time allowance the judges of the yacht races of yesterday decided that Captain Cotton's boat is entitled to first prize in the first class and Captain Humphrey's lack first prize in the second class.

APPOINTED A LIEUTENANT.
John P. McGill was today appointed a first lieutenant in the marine corps.

THE YACHT RACE.
The first sailing regatta of the Portsmouth Yacht club, held Memorial day afternoon, will go down as one of the most exciting and successful races ever held in this harbor. The water front all along the south end wharves was crowded with spectators while the yacht club kept open house all day long and entertained hundreds of visitors.
The races, of which there were three classes, were open to club members only and there was much friendly rivalry.
The races were scheduled to start at three o'clock and to the great credit of the club they started promptly at that hour.
There were four entries in the race for first-class yachts and they crossed the starting line with W. Cotton's yacht "Trouble" in the lead. Mr. Stephen Deester was at the helm of the "Trouble" and he kept the lead until the second time around the course when Captain Charles Drowne in the Typhosa gradually overhauled and passed the Trouble amid great excitement. The yachts finished in the following order: First, Typhosa, Captain Charles S. Drowne owner; second, Trouble, W. C. Cotton owner; third, Eolus, John Hultman owner; fourth, Two Star, Rodolph Liebrook owner.
The judges did not finish figuring out the time allowances for the different yachts so it was not announced on Tuesday evening who were the actual winners but they will probably be in the order named.
There were seven starters in the yachts for the second-class race, but one of them, Captain D. H. Trefethen's sloop, capsized on the first leg and was out of it at the start. Mr. Horace Montgomery had an accident to his main boom and had to draw out of the race on the first time around. The others finished in the following order: First, Flower of the Fleet, Elvin Newton owner; second, Captain Samuel W. Pillsbury owner, third, Lark, J. Clinton Humphreys owner; fourth, Sculpin, Charles Drowne owner.
The race for tenders was won by Captain Drown's tender to the Valiant.
As the judges did not finish in their work of figuring out the time allowance for the yachts, the correct result of the races will not be reached until this afternoon.
Judges—William J. Fraser, James H. Dow, Sherman T. Newton.
Regatta Committee—Charles S. Drowne, chairman; Daniel H. Trefethen, Charles O. Meloon, William P. Robin son, Horace P. Montgomery.

Steamer Sam Adams came in from the Shoals Tuesday afternoon and went out again this morning.
